In the Rear View Mirror

It is such a giving, fulfilling, and constant blessing to serve God. Even the hours spent mopping floors, stacking chairs, and doing the little things are worth it. I am reminded of the Kohathites in the book of Numbers, as God gave them a very specific job to carry the items of the temple after the priests had covered them all. In Numbers 16, Korah, a leader and grandson of Kohath, came to Moses asking for a more important job to do. Moses' response in verse nine is a beautiful reminder that there is no small job in service to God. This month, we have been faithful in service to all the little things, and we have seen God give us opportunities to do and see some very cool things as well. The second Sunday of March, I held a special party for my class (pictured above). While we celebrated their faithful attendance we also encouraged the students to bring as many guests as they could to eat pizza and watch a movie. With eleven in attendance, we watched a movie covering the life of David and how God brought him through times that were confusing and difficult, but they were worth it for the glory of God. You might remember that the theme of this class is "What is My Purpose?". And, as many of these children begin thinking about what they want to do in life and why they were created, we are praying for them and teaching them that God has a special purpose just for them—a better life that He wants to give them. And though it seems difficult and unpleasant now, God has a plan. Two weeks later, we also had the privilege of witnessing two people follow Christ in believer's baptism. What a joy it is to see people trust God for who He is and make purposeful choices in their lives to follow and obey Him.

The Road Ahead

It is now April, and we are drawing ever closer to our summer camp outreach. We want to say a special thank you to those who generously gave to sponsor eight children for this. We are growing very eager about this event. We are also encouraged to know that many of you are praying for our summer camp as well. In April, both Megumi and I have been asked to teach Bible studies a couple of times this month, which we are thoroughly enjoying. We will also be helping with a teen activity we have at the end of the month. Thank you for your prayers. We are tremendously grateful to have a host of believers standing behind us, praying that God would work miracles in the lives of people here in Iceland. It is only because of your prayers and financial support that we are able to minister and serve God, even in the little things.

Sincerely,

-The Sears Family
